TO SUCCEED MR. BALTES.

LEO SCHLESINGER, NEW PRESIDENT OF THE MECHANICS AND TRADERS'.

SOME DEPOSITORS WITHDRAW THEIR MONEY. BUT ARE REASSURED BY PROOF OF THE

COMPLETE SOLVENCY OF THE BANK. Vice-President Leo Schlesinger was elected to succeed Fernando Baltes as president of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank, at Broadway and Broome-st., at a meeting of the directors held yesterday afternoon, and Isaac Stiebel, one of the directors, was elected vice-president. President Schlesinger sald after the meeting that Mr. Baltes had been deposed from the presidency because he was incapacitated and unable to take care of the bank.

There was a run of fair-sized proportions on the bank yesterday, which was due to the published reports regarding President Baltes's notes and the probability that he would be deposed by the directors. The printed assurances of the bank's absolute solvency, reinforced by declarations to the same effect by officials of the bank, had weight with some of the uneasy depositors, who concluded not to withdraw their deposits; but others would be satisfied with nothing but their money, and they received it as promptly as the paying teller could attend to them.

WAITING FOR THEIR MONEY. At 11 o'clock there were about four hundred men in line waiting to withdraw money from Vice-President Schlesinger was in the bank, but President Baltes was not there. Mr. Schlesinger said he supposed the president did not wish to "face the music." He added that when the Clearing House discovered that a number of the president's indorsements had been found in Wall Street selling at a surprising discount, and investigated the matter, it had found the bank perfectly solvent. The Clearing House, he said, had guaranteed the bank all the money it wanted, and $100,000 had been sent to the bank for depositors.

"Mr. Baltes," added the vice-president, "was too easygoing."

At the usual time for the closing of the bank, 8 o'clock, there were still within the doors of the institution about two hundred depositors. The big iron door at the Broadway entrance was closed, while the door leading into Broome-st. was kept open for the convenience of those of the unpaid depositors who had been in the bank at the time for closing. It was roughly estimated that fully $250,000 had been withdrawn during the run on the bank. Large supplies of money came in by messenger to the bank through the afternoon, and a large number of those who, in the excitement earlier in the day, had withdrawn their deposits returned to the bank, where they handed their money over to the receiving teller.

After the meeting of the directors the newly elected president, Mr. Schlesinger, said that the bank had been found to have a surplus of $174,-000, and that this surplus had been only slightly been injured in the slightest way, and would not be injured by the withdrawals of the day.

Late in the afternoon George Leventritt. counsel for ex-President Baltes, appeared in the bank building and reported having presented the written resignation of his client, which he said had been accepted. This statement was confirmed by Vice-President Stiebel, who said that after the directors had taken the action referred to by President Schlesinger, who ancounced the deposition of his predecessor, it was deemed best, as a matter of propriety, to accept the resignation.

Mr. Leventritt, in his explanation of the situation, said that Mr. Baltes had been foolish in the matter of floating bonds in Wall Street, in the expectation that the transaction would resuit in securing to the bank a deposit of $500,000 from a source which he refused to name

The new president, Leo Schlesinger, is head ef the firm of Leo Schlesinger & Co., dealers in toys, at No. 129 Crosby-st., and has been a director in the bank for several years. Isaac Stiebel, the newly elected vice-president, is president of the Japanese Fan Company, at No. 519 Broadway. There is no allegation from any source affecting the integrity of ex-President Baltes, the only reason for his retirement, it is said, having been that the directors felt that his reported connection with the Tacoma railroad enterprise was not likely to promote the

THE TACOMA AND COLUMBIA RIVER CO. George M. Morton, vice-president of the ing answer: George M. Morton, vice-president of the Tacoma and Columbia River Railway Company, was seen yesterday afternoon at the Eastern offices of the corporation, at No. 40 Wall-st., and statement in substance as follows regarding the road:

"The Tacoma Railroad became the property of the Washington National Bank, of Tacoma, which failed. The Controller of the Currency took charge, put in a receiver and had the road sold. A friend and myself put up the money and bought the property. It was reorganized, and bonds were issued upon the part of the road which was in operation Important terminals were secured, and according to the terms of the mortgage bonds to the amount of $250,000 were issued upon these terminals. Contracts were made for disposing of the bonds, but the war came on and the contracts were not fulfilled.

Money had to be raised. Mr. Baltes assisted to a small extent in this work. This enterprise is Money had to be raised. Mr. Baltes assisted to a small extent in this work. This enterprise is considered an excellent one by all who have examined it. Mr. Rumrill, some of whose notes, indersed by Mr. Baltes, have been offered in Wall Street, is a bookkeeper in this office.

"The stock of the road," continued Mr. Morton, "had been placed in the hands of a voting trust for five years, and the sole trustee was William Engley, the president. I have just received word from the West that the road has been reorganized by the election of new officers, all Western men, and that probably means that

F. H. Garman, formerly treasurer of the is quoted as saying that he had put $19,000 into the enterprise and that Mr. Morton had invested $100,000. The trustee of the railroad's mortgage $100,000. The trustee of the raliroad's mortgage is the Continental Trust Company, of this city. Otto T. Bannard, president of that company, said yesterday that the mortgage was an unlimited one, the line being allowed to bond itself for $20,000 on each mile of the present route and possible future extensions. Bonds to the amount of $500,000 had been issued—$250,000 on the road and $250,000 on the deep-water terminals. Mr. Bannard knew nothing of the reported reorganization of the line, and said that in any case it would not affect the mortgage. The road had defaulted upon its September coupons, but under the terms of the mortgage no foreclosure under the terms of the mortgage no foreclosure proceedings could be instituted within six months from the date of the default.

The Board of Directors of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank gave out the following statement last evening:

ment last evenin:

Despite the withdrawals to-day by depositors, who were needlessly alarmed, every demand was met, and the bank closed the day's business with a satisfactory amount of cash on hand. The bank will open its doors to-morrow morning, fully prepared to meet every possible demand, and any depositor who wishes to draw his money to-morrow or Monday or later has only to apply for it. We must contess, however, to a feeling of sincere satisfaction that more than $100,000 was deposited by our regular customers to-day.

The fact that our bank has been able to withstand so severe a pressure at almost a moment's notice, and is now prepared to withstand any further possible requirements, is sufficient evidence of both its stability and its standing in this mercantile community.

The Davis was fitted with water-tube boilers of the Thorneycroft type, involving the use of curved tubes connecting and the connection of the Yonkers Yacht Club. tubes connecting upper and lower water and steam drums. From the meagre details which have reached here, the engineers believe that one or tremendous pressure to which the boat was keyed up for her trial trip, pulled away from one of the drums. The leak so caused would be sufficient to fill the small fireroom with scalding steam in a few seconds. Possibly a contributing cause to the accident was the lack of water, resulting in the overheating and weakening of the top of the tubes.

Just such an accident, though fortunately without

Mr. Croker personally exhibited a bland, child-like desire for harmony and reconciliation with Mr. Hill when the ex-Senator was in the city yesterday and the day preceding, by refusing absolutely to have anything to do with him. The up-State Democrats are beginning to realize that it is the plad of Mr. Croker to dominate the State government as absolutely as he dominates the city government if his ticket is elected. He found, when he went to the State Convention at Syracuse that the majority of leaders from up the State were absolutely opposed to having a Tammany man mominated. DISORDERLY HOUSES IN THE TENDERLOIN MAGISTRATE DEUEL SAYS THEY EXIST AND

ADMONISHES CAPTAIN PRICE. The records of this court show that there have only been six disorderly houses raided in the last ten months. Every morning there are from twenty-five to thirty women in this court charged with disorderly conduct. The prevalence of these cases demonstrates the existence of disorderly houses. These houses should be closed. It seems to me that some action should be taken."

Magistrate Deuel said this to Captain Price, of the Tenderloin police station, in the West Side Police Court restorday afternoon. The Magistrate Pelice Court yesterday afternoon. The Magistrate was vehement and emphatic. The admonition grew out of a petty larceny case watch was on trial in the court. A woman charged the proprietor of a house at No. 481 Seventh-ave. With detaining her trunks. She admitted that she had been arrested for lottering and said that the other women in the house were not respectable. Captain Price when it was disclosed that the house was a disorderly one, affected to be much horrified and said that he did not know one existed in the precinct. After the case had been decided he stepped up to the Magistrate and whispered to him Magistrate Deuel finally became more emphatic. He raised his voice and admonished the police captain severely. Captain Price took the reproof submissively and said that now that the matter had come to his efficial knowledge he would act promptly and effectively. Magistrate Deuel told him that he would see to it that he did.
